Sauder's Eggs Recognized by The Food Institute as Best Certified Humane® Egg Brand

Lititz, PA (January X, 2026) — Sauder's Eggs, a family-owned business based in Lititz, Pennsylvania, and a leading supplier of farm-fresh eggs across the Mid-Atlantic, Northeast, and Midwest has been named the Best Certified Humane® Egg Brand by The Food Institute, earning the top ranking in the publication's recent nationwide evaluation of egg producers.

Featured in The Food Institute's roundup of Certified Humane® egg brands, Sauder's Eggs rose to the top for its consistent commitment to animal welfare, quality, and responsible farming practices. The evaluation reviewed Certified Humane® brands across the country, with Sauder's recognized for its high standards, transparency, and reliability throughout its supply chain, solidifying the company's position as a leader in the specialty egg category.

"We are incredibly honored to be recognized by The Food Institute as the leading Certified Humane® egg brand," said Mark Sauder, President & CEO of Sauder's Eggs. "This distinction reflects the dedication of our partner farms and our shared commitment to doing what's right for our hens, our customers, and the communities we serve."

Certified Humane® standards require strict adherence to comprehensive animal care guidelines, including nutritious diets, appropriate living conditions, and humane handling practices. Sauder's Eggs partners with 45 farms to process 500 million Certified Humane® eggs annually, ensuring these standards are consistently upheld and reinforcing the company's commitment to integrity, quality, accountability, and continuous improvement.
